David Weeks, co-chair of AMNT wins the 'Outstanding contribution to the pensions industry' award at the Pension Management Institute's Annual Dinner 2019

Responding to his win at the prestigious Pensions Management Institute's Annual Dinner 2019, David Weeks, Co-Chair of Association of Member Nominated Trustees (AMNT), highlights how the win reflects the results-driven initiatives taken by the Association to make the case for supporting member-nominated trustees, directors and employee representatives of UK based pension schemes in the private and public sector.

David Weeks, co-chair of Association of Member Nominated Trustees (AMNT), said:

"I would like to thank the Pensions Management Institute for recognising my contribution to the UK pensions industry, and the work that we carry out collectively as a team at the AMNT. Increasingly, we have raised the profile of the member nominated trustees and their concerns. We collaborate with Government, Parliamentarians and regulators to support our initiatives and defend our core values."

Lesley Carline, president of Pensions Management Institute, added:

"I was particularly delighted to hand David Weeks this award as I feel David and his team at AMNT play such an important role in keeping the voice of the MNTs heard. Even in a challenging environment, they continue to support MNT's and deliver on all their initiatives.

"Congratulations to David on this win, I look forward to continue working with him and the AMNT."

AMNT

The Association of Member Nominated Trustees (AMNT) is a not-for-profit company limited by guarantee, set up by and for member-nominated trustees, member-nominated directors and employee representatives, of UK based occupational pension schemes in the private and public sector. Set up in 2010, the AMNT has included nearly 600 trustees in its membership, and together these have represented pension schemes with assets under management of around £775 billion, one third of the total UK occupational pensions sector.

The Association is dedicated to providing those Member Nominees (MNs) with support, which underpins their critical role in ensuring that their pension scheme is governed in the best interests of the scheme members in consultation with their sponsors. The AMNT will enable MNTs to build their skills and knowledge, voice their opinions, share best practice, become part of a like-minded community and be better recognised for the good and important work they do.
