Sponsorship brochure 2019

Providing essential support to trustees and commitment to the pensions industry

Established in 2010, AMNT is a not-for-profit organisation aspiring to be a positive force and a prominent voice in the UK pensions industry today.

AMNT is a collective voice for member nominated trustees, directors and representatives of public sector and private sector pension schemes. AMNT provides support, guidance and enables its members to make a greater and more active contribution to scheme governance. The Association is free to join. In return members benefit from access to exclusive resources, events, training materials and the opportunity to grow their network amongst like-minded Trustees and professionals who share their unique perspective on the pension's landscape.

Our vision

The Association of Member Nominated Trustees (AMNT) aspires to be a positive force and prominent voice in the UK pensions industry. We believe that given the inherently complex nature of UK pensions and the increasing burden being placed on trustees that far more support should be available to member nominees in particular.

Our policies are driven by the momentum of the industry and regulation that is under discussion or in construction. Nevertheless our policies do reflect certain core principles of the AMNT:

We think that the beneficial interests of occupational pension scheme members are better served and protected through there being member representation as a substantial part of the governance structure. We seek to work against the undue influence of vested interests within the industry. We endorse policies that recognise and enable member nominees to better carry out their responsibilities - such as training, adequate time allowed for training, the ability to pursue related qualifications and more. We believe in the active responsible investment of pension schemes over the longer term.

How can you make a difference?

Becoming a sponsor of the AMNT provides essential support to busy trustees, presenting a commitment to the pensions industry, whilst gaining company exposure through events, webinars and communications.

Brand exposure

More than a website directory

Year on year our surveys reveal that members are most interested in training, networking and thought leadership facilitated by leading pensions brands. This is backed up by our sponsor hosted events which are extremely popular.

Hosting or speaking at an event generates our sponsors the greatest exposure. Your brand will be communicated throughout the process of promoting an event through our email campaigns and social media activity. Then, on the day of the event, we actively manage our social media channels to ensure that our sponsor host/speaker receives further exposure beyond our network and into the wider pensions space, including peers, journalists and pensions professionals. To put this into context, at an event last year, one of our sponsors conducted a systems demonstration to our members. That one-hour session generated 2,000+ impressions on Twitter and over 7,500 impressions for the whole day. Such sessions stimulate conversation amongst our members and give the sponsor a platform to demonstrate their expertise.

Our events calendar is the most visited page on our website. In fact, we believe that our calendar is the most comprehensive anywhere in pensions. It's a real asset to our brand and it presents a great opportunity for our sponsors to promote their events.

In addition to the calendar we also promote and distribute sponsor content to our network via our email campaigns and social channels. Such content could include thought leadership, bios, white papers, video and infographics.

Our approach to sponsor promotion is less about funnelling viewers to sponsor pages and more about continual brand reinforcement throughout our communications.
